SUBJECT: Logistical Support for Professional Military Associations

Professional military associations are non-profit, non-commercial organizations that exist to support, promote and develop the interests of our Armed Forces and military professionals. Periodically, it is appropriate to recognize their significance to the mission and their on-going contributions to national defense and to our profession of arms.

Through the years, these organizations have developed a solid reputation for furthering military professionalism. They do this by increasing awareness of our mission with the American public, helping to preserve our proud heritage, and fostering strong and mutually beneficial relationships among government, industry and civic leaders.

From time-to-time, professional military associations need help disseminating information about their activities. They may also seek limited logistical support of their programs. While requests for support should be coordinated with your servicing legal offices, the attached fact sheet contains guidance to increase your awareness of the types of support that can be provided to these organizations, consistent with the Joint Ethics Regulation (JER)(DOD 5500.7-R).

Professional military associations represent an important non-governmental dimension of our country's strong interest in national defense. To the extent that the JER permits you to support these organizations, I encourage you to do so.
